LUTHERAN CHURCH

MARCH 2024

Pastor's Column

Submitted by Lead Pastor
Tim Maybee

Dear Amazing Grace,

My own call to ministry revolves around what I would describe as a life-long, growing sense that another world is possible. As a child, I was privileged to participate in a church that firmly believed that the Christian faith is about so much more than “going to heaven when you die.” We were taught that our faith is more about living in light of God’s abundant love and compassion now. Because of this, my childhood church connected me and the other church members with outside organizations and partners who were actively seeking a better, more just and loving world for ourselves and our neighbors.

I have tremendously fond memories of serving, as a middle and high schooler, at the Connection Cafe in Des Moines, where I grew up. The Connection Cafe served food to people experiencing poverty and houselessness and did so in a way that preserved people’s dignity and stressed equality. Weekends at Connection Cafe taught me to see myself in solidarity alongside people whose lives are very different from my own. It taught me to question why we live in a world where I have more than enough and so many others have so few. The relationships I formed there introduced me to a God who passionately partners with God’s people to pursue just, peaceful, and compassionate communities.

These partnerships across difference and distance made a lasting impression on me and ultimately compelled me to study religion and enter the ministry. Such lively, life-giving partnerships still motivate me to act in faith, and I am not alone in this. So many people have come to know the liberator-Christ through fruitful mission and ministry partnerships.

For all these reasons, when I was interviewing with Amazing Grace two and a half years ago, I was so grateful to hear about the long-term connection we’ve had with the Isaiah Community Organizing group. Isaiah is a “multiracial group of faith communities, Black barbershops, childcare centers, and more fighting for racial and economic justice in Minnesota.”

On February 20 I had the great joy of gathering with a couple hundred of our neighbors at the State Capitol to speak with our representatives about ensuring better, more affordable access to the basic human right of healthcare. A group of four of us spent time with State Senator Matt Klein, Representative Rick Hansen, and Representative Mary Francis Clardy. Stories were boldly shared and commitments were made to push along a current bill which will grant more equitable access to healthcare statewide. It is a powerful thing to pursue a more just world in cooperation with one's neighbors and one's political representatives. I left the event feeling deeply connected to God, my neighbors, and myself as a child of God.

A couple days later, AGLC member Mark Morgan attended a similar gathering, this time with a focus on the climate. Mark reflected on the experience: "I believe we had somewhere between 400 and 500 concerned citizens from around the state of MN for an event in the capitol rotunda and then meetings with many legislators to discuss our concerns. Our focus was on Climate / Decarbonization of our energy infrastructure as well as housing affordability since the two issues are very inter-connected. It was a blessing to see so many concerned citizens (and youth) participating in democracy. Anyone can do it! Our legislators WANT to hear from us! :) There is much more work to do to make sure our voices are heard. Please reach out if you would like to learn more. Below is a little more information on Unidos:

Unidos MN (formerly known as Navigate MN) is a grassroots organization that builds power with Minnesota's working families to advance social, racial and economic justice. As an organization born from the DREAMER movement, the topics of immigration, education, and climate justice are at the core of our work. We are an intersectional, intergenerational, women, Latine-led organization. (website: Unidos MN (unidos-mn.org))."

God calls us to partner for peace with our neighbors. I am excited to walk with you as we join together to serve the world around us.

In Christ,

Worship and Music Update: March 2024

We begin our Lenten journey tomorrow with Ash Wednesday. The Lenten Theme at Amazing Grace this year is based on a book, "Somewhere in the unknown World, by Kao Kalia Yang." It is a collection of powerful stories of refugees who have found new lives in Minnesota's Twin Cities. Yang shares the stories of many refugee families, helping us to know of the struggles that each endures, to have a safe life. Many of these families have left their Country because they were not safe. Many left their extended family, some maybe even immediate family members who are still in danger. I encourage you to get the book and come along on this Lenten journey. May we all take some quiet time this Lent to reflect on how God can use us to help make someone's life a little easier.

This is what the Sovereign Lord, the Holy One of Israel, says: "Only in returning to me and resting in me will you be saved. In quietness and confidence is your strength."

Isaiah 30:15 NLT

Together we journey,
Jeannie Hall
